Interdisciplinary consortium

- Traumatrix project: Since 2016, I coordinate the Traumatrix project in partnership with the École Polytechnique (IPP), the CNRS, EHESS (École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales), Inria, the traumabase group (30 hospitals) and APHP (les hopitaux de Paris) to improve the management of polytrauma patients by leveraging observational data. The project is funded by ARS (Agence Regional de Santé) and by the skill sponsorship of Capgemini Invent (10 data scientists, project managers, data managers). The project is mature and we will launch February 2024 a mobile application in the ambulances that collects data and predicts patient's outcomes to anticipate the resources needed.
- ICUBAM (ICU Bed Availability Monitor) project. During the first waves of Covid crisis, I coordinated a consortium of computer scientists, statisticians and clinicians to create an application to visualize in real time covid+ bed availability (used by 130 ICU wards in 40 départements (regions) covering more than 2, 000 ICU beds).

Software

I am deeply involved in the open source R statistical software community. I organized the useR conference (500 participants) in 2009 in Rennes and I am regularly in the program committees of useR conferences (e.g., Chair of useR!2016 in Stanford). I am also in the board of the French R committee (organization for coordinating R conferences "Les rencontres R") and I am involved in a task Force on behalf of the R Foundation with the aim of increasing the participation of women and under-represented groups in the STEM community (I am a founding member in 2015). We have worked for instance on the implementation of code of conducts. We organized diversity committees to award scholarships, newbies session, etc.

In Nov. 2016, I have been elected as a member of the R foundation and of the R Foundation Conference Committee.

I use R for teaching, research, development, consulting, etc. R ensures reproducible research and transfer to different domains. I develop and maintain the following libraries:

- FactoMineR dedicated to principal component methods (PCA, Correspondence Analysis for contingency tables, Multiple Correspondence Analysis for categorical data, Multiple Factor Analysis for multi-blocks data). Users are from the public sector, private sector or research institution from all around the world. (4 500 download/day; > 5 million in total, paper cited > 7000 times) Google users group and Youtube videos are also available.
- missMDA to perform principal component methods (PCA, MCA, MFA) with missing values and to impute continuous, categorical and mixed data. Multiple imputation is available. (250 download/day; > 400,000 in total; paper cited > 700 times)
- denoiseR to approximate a low-rank matrix from noisy data (Gaussian and Poisson Noise). Singular values shrinkage methods are implemented.

To foster good practice for handling missing values, I have created with some students, colleagues, R-miss-tastic a platform for missing data to gather and create resources for users, researchers and students who often don't have lecture on missing values: bibliography, courses, tutorials, implementations, pipelines of analysis in R and Python. We have also provided a task-view (to organize all R packages on a topic) on missing values and recently I've recently federated colleagues to create one on causal inference.
